Abstract

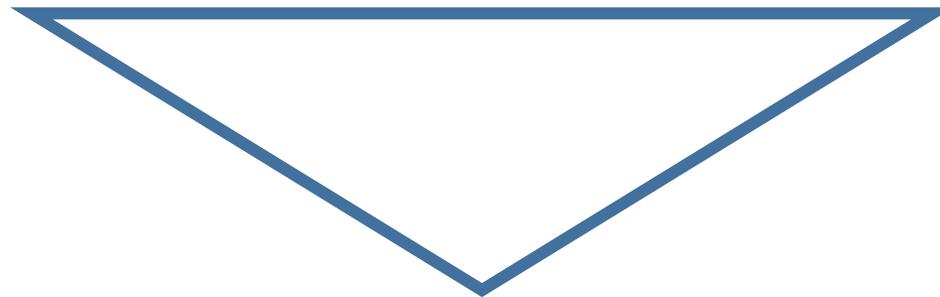

Forest resource management has a characteristic of high transaction cost particularly due to lack of valid information and policy process. Such characteristic requires unique institution to ensure an effective policy implementation. This study shows that state has inadequate control over forests and forest governance, extra-legal access, as well as patron-client relationships as the causes of the high transaction costs. Consequently, more and more the natural production forests are degraded and this does not only cause loss of state revenue from natural resources, but also a bankruptcy of corporations which exploit natural production forests. Most of those natural forest assets turned into resources for producing and reproducing a rival institution or extra-legal power, rendering official state institutions incapable of controlling transaction costs. Therefore, changes and improvements of the licensing arrangements need to be supported by the political elites and elite government officials in order to break the historical influence as well as to serve as a new platform for mid-level employees and government officers in implementing the national forest utilization policy.

Fraud in the seafood trade

Deceptive Dishes: Seafood Swaps Found Worldwide

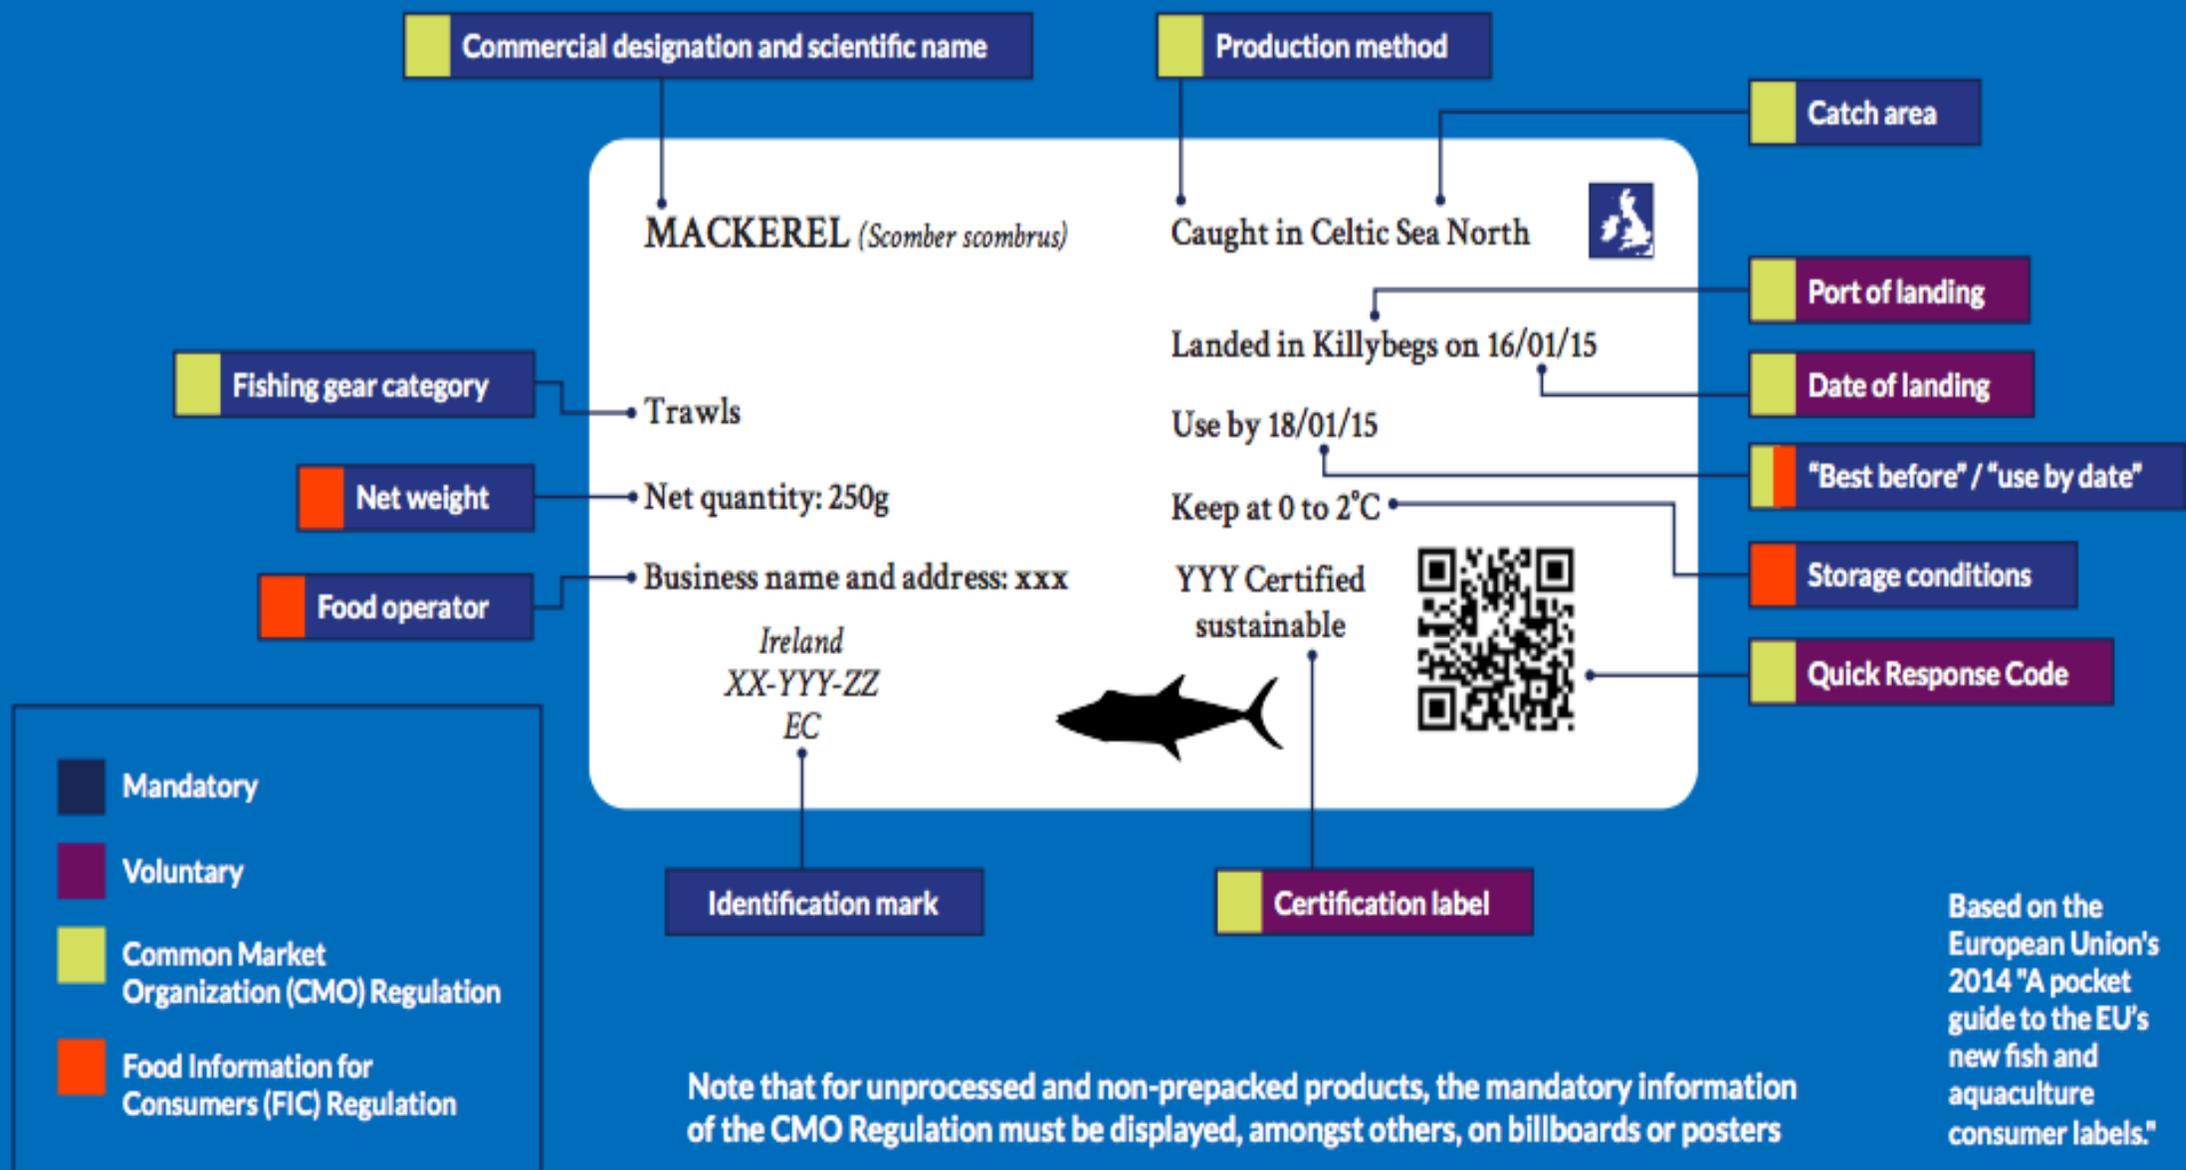

- 1 in 5 samples mislabeled
 - 63% clear economic motivation
 - 58% were spp. that pose a health risk
- Found at every level of the supply chain

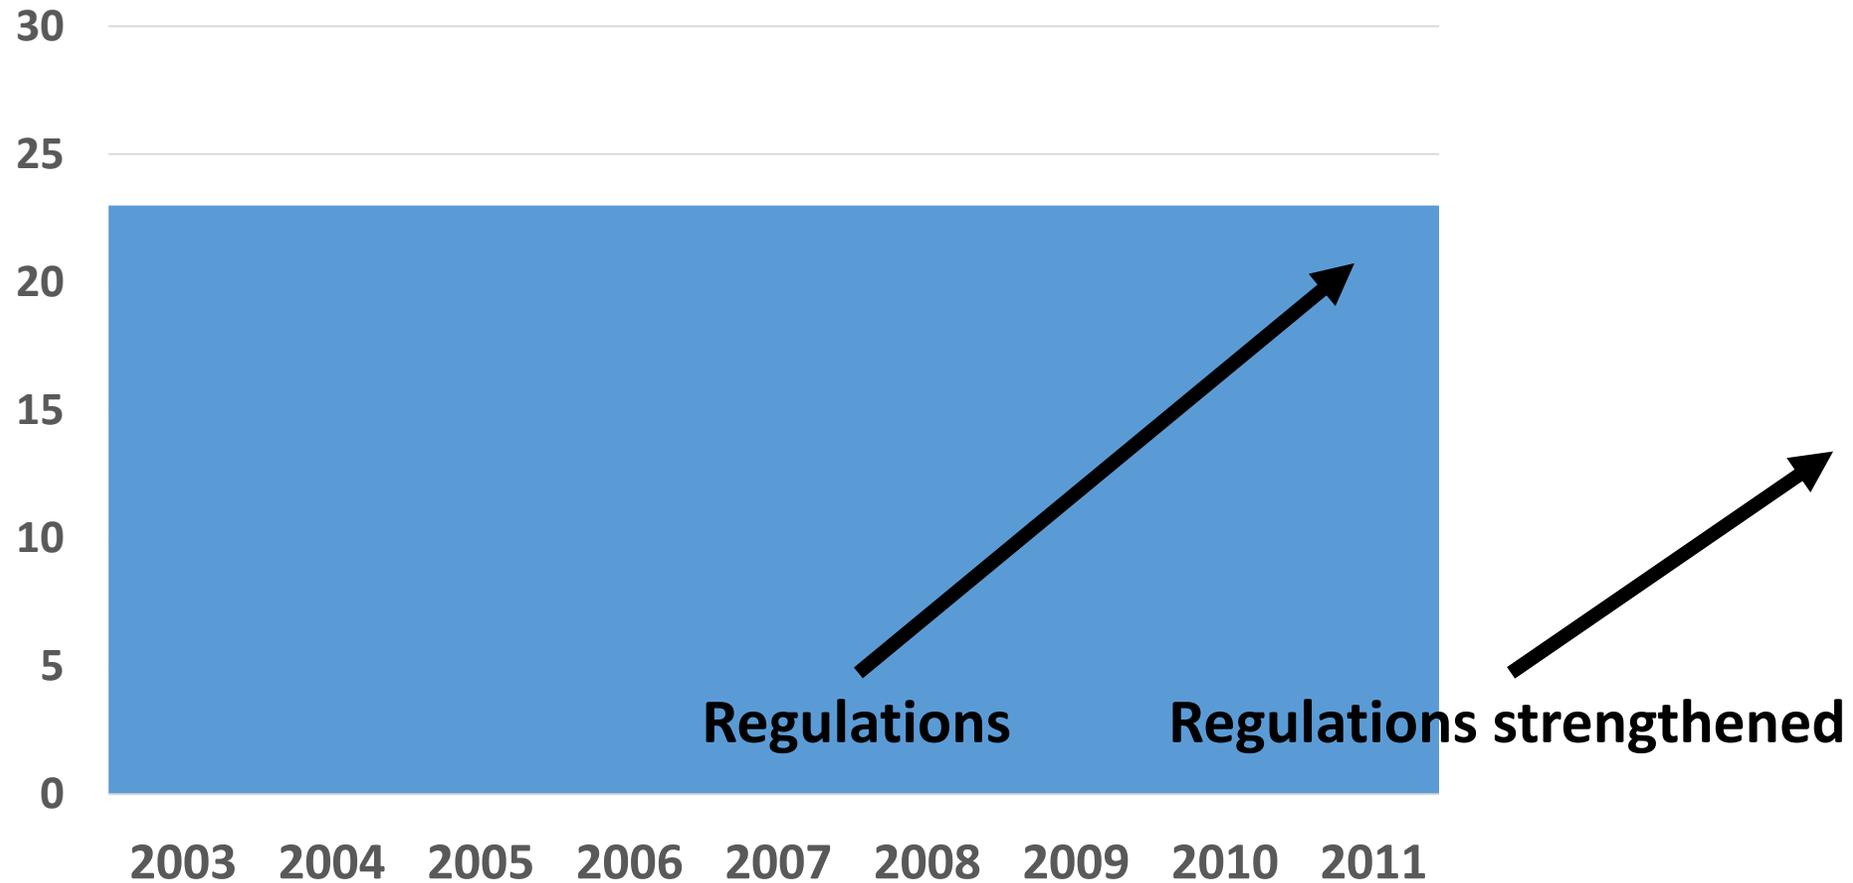

EU response

- Mandatory labelling

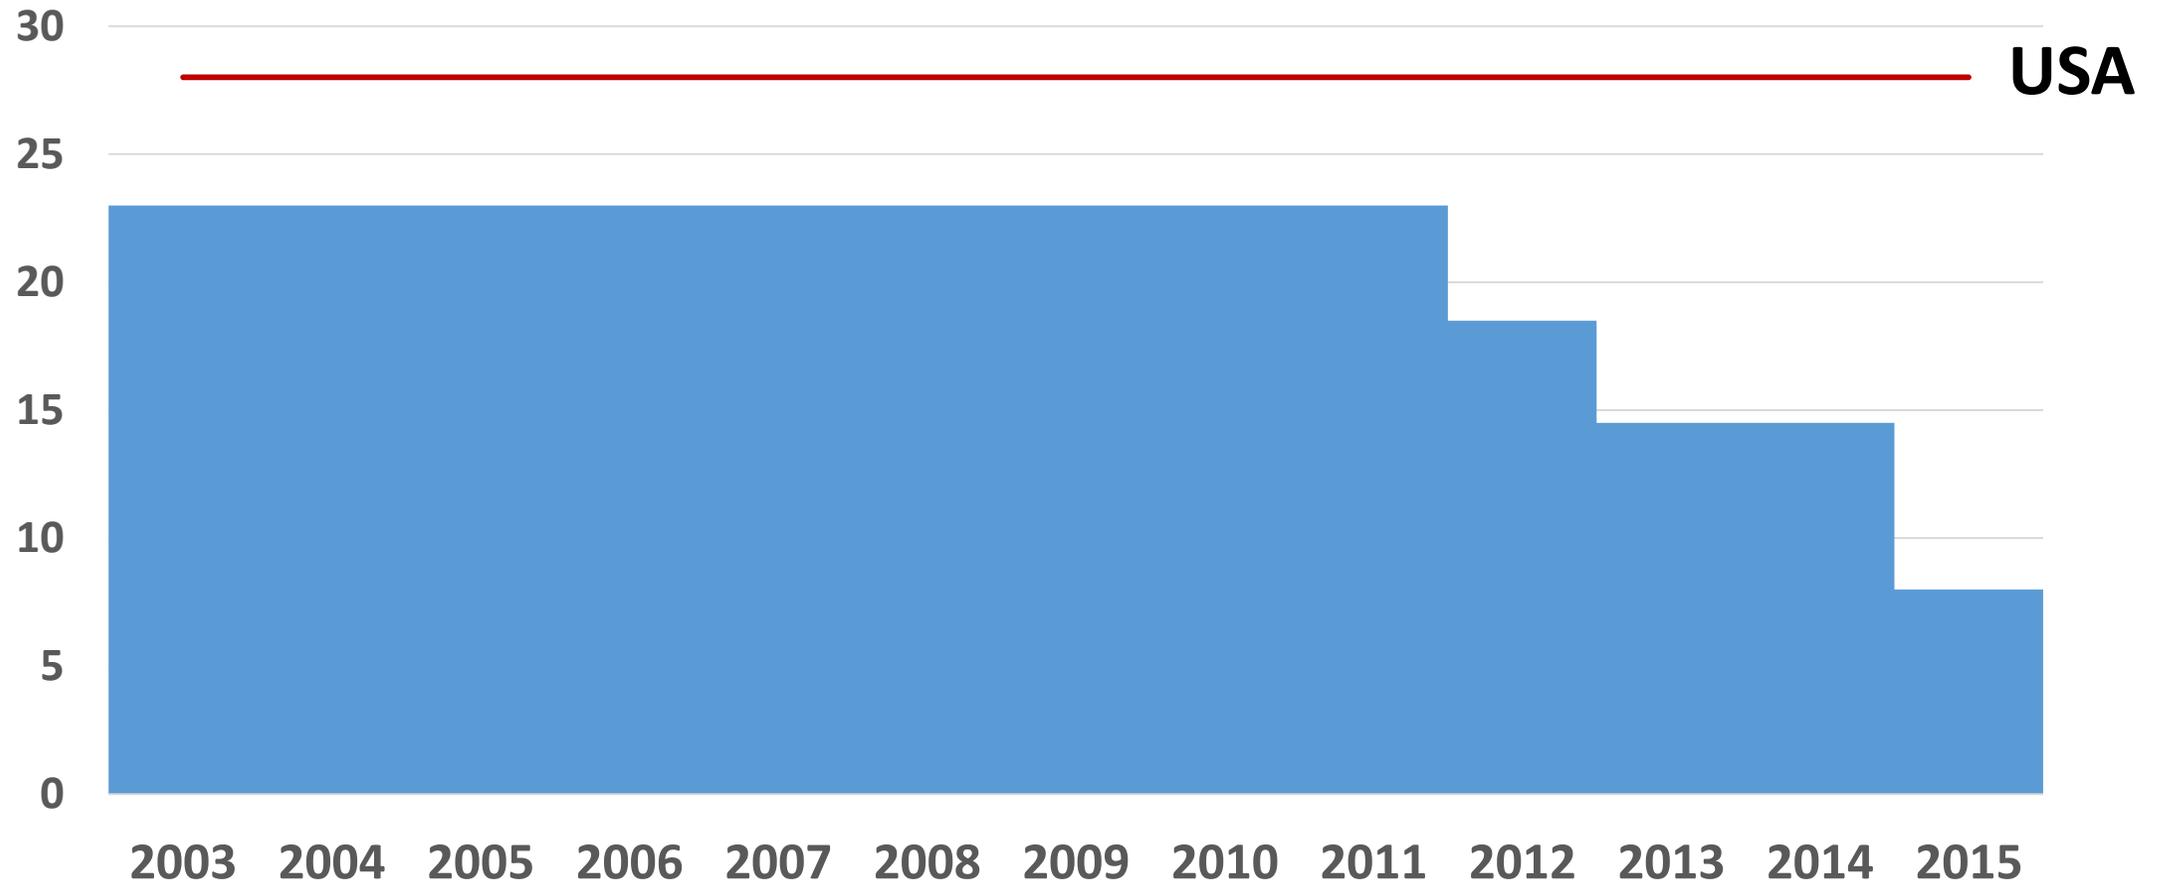

Example of label for an unprocessed and prepacked fresh product

% of fish mislabeled

Fraud in the timber sector

- If laundered, doesn't have to be smuggled
- Certification
 - Voluntary – benefit of the doubt
 - Paradox: only works when legal system is fairly good
 - ~10% in poorly governed countries
- Self-assessment/self-declaration

Types of fraud in the timber sector

- Document fraud

- Falsified permits (laundering)

- Mislabeling (provenance; species; size/age...)
 - Concession license
 - Regulatory compliance
 - ❖ ESIA
 - ❖ Consultation + compensation to locals
 - Transportation; export; CITES; FLEGT-VPA

- Genuine, but:

- obtained through corruption

- recycled

- False invoicing (tax evasion)

- Mislabeling (under-declaration of volumes; values...)
 - Transfer mis-pricing

What can be done?

- Understand risk

- Company

- Policy

- ❖ Does the company have a plan to deal with risk (avoid all but acceptable risk; then mitigate)

- ❖ Is it board approved?

- ❖ How is it implemented?

- Due diligence

- Chain of custody

- ❖ Disclosure/reporting

- Audits

- 3rd party reports

- ❖ Does the company take corrective actions?

Due diligence

- Evaluate documents

- Corroborate with issuing authority

- ❖ Does the permit appear genuine?

- Does it look right?

- Is it merely a photocopy?

- Can you confirm from issuer that the company has been assigned this permit?

Due diligence

- Evaluate documents
- Evaluate data
 - Provenance (range; density of trees;...)
 - Is this a new product/new supplier?
 - Is the tree species found in that country?
 - Does the supplier have more product (volume) than they should?
 - Are conversion rates (e.g., wood chips → pulp; m³ → veneer) too low?
 - Transport route (mills; ports;...)
 - Is it likely that the mill would have such a supply?
 - Does the transportation route make sense?
 - Price
 - Compare to (e.g.,) ITTO's market price for national marketplace
